About Day Pitney

With more than a century in practice, Day Pitney has a long track record of helping our clients accomplish their business goals. Our focus on service allows us to anticipate our clients' needs and create positive outcomes that truly add value and make a difference to our clients on a daily basis.

With more than 300 attorneys in nine offices, we are well-positioned to bring a personal and practical approach to all that we do. We work in cross-disciplinary teams to provide results-based representation and forward-thinking solutions to complex litigation and transactional matters.

Our clients include large national and international corporations, financial institutions, government entities, and individual businesses. Our firm is well-known and respected for our work in litigation, energy, corporate and business law, labor, and the financial markets, among other areas. Our Individual Clients department is one of the largest and most sophisticated practices of its kind in the country.

We are much more than the sum of our core practices, however. Our commitment to diversity and our focus on a shared culture are directly reflected in our client service. Both accessible and transparent, we build strong bonds with our clients that enable us to help them accomplish their personal, legal, and business goals.

Key Practice Areas

LITIGATION

Whatever our clients' litigation needs, our attorneys have a tradition of handling a wide array of complex litigation matters for companies big and small at the pretrial, trial, and appellate levels. Key allies in the courtroom, our attorneys also are skilled and experienced in arbitration, mediation, and other forms of alternative dispute resolution. Our lawyers will work with you to discuss the range of available strategies that can be pursued to efficiently and effectively achieve the desired results in your case. We handle almost every type of litigation, including intellectual property, antitrust, securities, franchise, products liability, and toxic tort, to name a few.

CORPORATE

Our team of corporate and transactional attorneys represents publicly traded companies in a variety of major industries, including energy, banking, defense, communications, manufacturing, and technology. The Wall Street sophistication that we offer our clients is complemented by the personal touch we bring to areas as diverse as capital markets, corporate governance, mergers and acquisitions, securities law, compliance, alternative investments, and tax and benefits. We also have broad capabilities in real estate, land use, and environmental issues, representing a range of clients, including lenders, developers, owners, and prospective buyers.

GOVERNMENT INVESTIGATIONS

With regulatory and enforcement issues more important than ever, our corporate and individual clients rely on us for representation in a variety of federal and state investigations. Whether brought by the U.S. Department of Justice, the Securities and Exchange Commission, or any number of state and local enforcement agencies, we handle investigations involving financial and securities fraud, political corruption, and regulatory matters. Our team of former federal and state prosecutors and regulators has extensive experience conducting internal investigations for corporate boards, audit committees, and special management committees.

LABOR, EMPLOYMENT AND BENEFITS

Ranging from Fortune 500 companies to single-site operations, our clients have long counted on our outstanding trial record for their employment disputes. Our well-regarded and top-ranked team of labor, employment, and benefits attorneys has handled discrimination and labor disputes, administrative and regulatory actions brought by state and federal agencies, and ERISA contract disputes. Our forward-looking attorneys also strive to prevent problems before they arise by pursuing proactive personnel policies, conducting internal audits, and ensuring compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act.

INTELLECTUAL PROPERTY

For many companies today, intellectual property is a key asset. At Day Pitney, our team of intellectual property attorneys strives to protect, preserve, and maximize the value of those assets. To do so, we provide a variety of services ranging from patent and trademark prosecution to representation in transactions and litigation. Our attorneys bring backgrounds in computer science, media and communications, antitrust, and science and engineering to the highly technical issues in the IP arena. That diversity has served our clients in numerous fields such as digital technology, telecommunications, computers, electronics, software, Internet and new media, consumer electronics, mechanical and electromechanical devices, aerospace, photocopying, photonics, industrial chemicals, chemical processes, textiles, pharmaceuticals, and biotechnology.

exempt entities. We are informed and compassionate advisers in a practice that is international and truly personal.

ENERGY

Energy and energy infrastructure are among the country's most important issues for the foreseeable future, and we have spent more than 50 years at the forefront of most of the complex challenges that have faced the industry. We represent U.S. and international developers, contractors, utilities, suppliers, and investors in environmental and land use issues; retail and wholesale market design; the development and financing of new power plants; mergers, consolidations, reorganizations, and divestitures; and alternative dispute resolutions. Members of our leadership team have held high-level in-house positions, including general counsel to the New England Power Pool (NEPOOL), general counsel to Central Maine Power Company, and special nuclear counsel to a utility client whose plants were previously on the Nuclear Regulatory Commission's watch list.

Diversity

Diversity is a core value at Day Pitney. We embrace diversity because we appreciate the reality of a multicultural world and have long understood the value of input and collaboration among professionals with varying perspectives.

A multicultural approach leads to broader vision, innovation, and creativity. This, in turn, better equips us to provide excellent service to our clients, as our focus and dedication to diversity enable us to achieve meaningful, lasting, and sustainable results.

While we are proud of what we have achieved over the years, the challenge to build on those accomplishments continues. We remain committed to supporting diversity and leading our profession in a direction that more accurately reflects the world in which we live. We do that by encouraging and respecting varying perspectives within the firm and in the communities in which we practice.

Pro Bono

Day Pitney's record of pro bono legal representation is a source of pride for the firm and has helped make the legal system more just by providing legal representation to persons of limited means.

Through our pro bono efforts we have enriched the communities in which we operate, and in turn, we have received recognition and thanks from clients, courts, and civic organizations. We are strongly committed to serving the legal needs of the poor through the delivery of legal services at no fee or at a substantially reduced fee to individuals, groups, or organizations seeking to secure or protect civil rights, civil liberties, or public rights. We also represent charitable, religious, civic, community, governmental, and educational organizations in matters in furtherance of their organizational purposes.

Our system of resolving disputes is premised on the view that justice is achieved when contending parties are ably and vigorously represented by counsel. When a lack of economic means deprives litigants of representation, that premise is undermined and our aspirations for equal justice under the law frustrated.

Day Pitney is a signatory to the Pro Bono Challenge administered by the Pro Bono Institute, which challenges firms to provide the equivalent of 3 percent of their annual billable hours to pro bono matters. This pledge translates to approximately 50 hours per lawyer per year.
