

March 4, 2015

Mark Salah Morgan and Evan Marc Lazerowitz Write Article for NJLJ

Mark Salah Morgan and Evan Marc Lazerowitz wrote a bylined article, "When Health-Care Providers Suffer Data Security Breaches," for the New Jersey Law Journal about how New Jersey is likely to follow Connecticut in finding that the Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act of 1996 (HIPAA) allows negligence claims against providers. However, healthcare providers can limit their liability for data breaches by taking greater precautions to protect electronic protected health information from disclosure and complying with HIPAA's Security Rule. To reach the full article, please click here.