Overview

Alan Ruiz assists real estate developers and financial institutions with conveyancing, developing and financing commercial real estate. He represents lenders and borrowers in all aspects of the origination and modification of commercial mortgage and mezzanine loans, including single-property and multi-property transactions, secured by office, retail, industrial and hospitality properties, for portfolio, syndicated and securitized loans. Additionally, Alan also represents clients in the acquisition and disposition of commercial real estate assets, including urban and suburban office buildings, multifamily apartment buildings, industrial properties, retail shopping centers and mixed-use developments located throughout the United States.

Alan's real estate practice includes drafting and negotiating loan and acquisition documents and legal opinions, and he has substantial experience reviewing and advising clients regarding all aspects of diligence in connection with conveyancing, constructing and financing commercial real estate, including joint venture agreements and other organizational documents, hotel franchise agreements, management agreements, condominium documents, ground and space leases, complex easements and title insurance. He brings a cost-conscious and efficient approach to matters that facilitates smooth closings at minimal client expense.
