Everything You Need to Know about AI in Discovery and Motion Practice

Day Pitney Litigation Partner Mark Romance recently authored an article for the American Bar Association (ABA) titled "Everything You Need to Know About AI in Discovery and Motion Practice." In the piece, he examines how artificial intelligence is reshaping litigation—from legal research and drafting to discovery and judicial decision-making—highlighting both the opportunities and challenges it brings to the legal industry.

Romance currently serves as co-chair of the ABA Litigation Section's Pretrial Practice and Discovery Committee.

To delve deeper into these issues, join the panel discussion "Using Artificial Intelligence in Discovery and Motion Practice" at the ABA Litigation Annual Conference in Chicago on Friday, May 2, where Day Pitney Counsel Ashley Picker Dubin will share insights on the evolving role of AI in litigation.
