Overview

Hannah Kalichman represents clients in a wide range of complex business disputes. Her practice spans handling trials and appeals involving claims of breach of contract, negligence, fraud and misrepresentation, breach of fiduciary duty, unfair trade practices, constitutional violations, medical malpractice, and probate controversies.

Hannah brings significant courtroom experience to her work, having argued before the Connecticut Appellate Court and litigated multiple matters through to verdict in state and federal court. She also has experience in arbitration proceedings and has represented clients across the aerospace, healthcare, and financial services industries.

Before joining Day Pitney in 2021, Hannah served as a law clerk to the Honorable Richard A. Robinson, Chief Justice of the Connecticut Supreme Court.
