Day Pitney Deepens Real Estate and Land Use Practices with Addition of Grace Chun

Day Pitney LLP is pleased to announce that Grace Chun has joined the firm as Counsel in its Real Estate and Land Use Practices. Chun brings more than 16 years of experience advising clients on a wide range of litigation, land use, and real estate matters, enhancing the firm's ability to guide clients through complex development, zoning, and regulatory challenges. Her addition underscores the firm's continued investment in strengthening its real estate platform and delivering sophisticated, solutions-oriented counsel to clients across the region and nationwide. She is based in the firm's Parsippany office.

“Grace's practice reflects the kind of multidimensional experience our clients increasingly need, including land use approvals, litigation strategy, and complex development matters,” said Craig Gianetti, Co-chair of Day Pitney's Real Estate, Environmental and Land Use Business Unit. “She brings a thoughtful, practical approach to navigating both the regulatory process and contested matters, and her addition further strengthens our capabilities across the firm's national platform. We are excited to add her to our team”

At Day Pitney, Chun concentrates her practice on land use, planning and zoning, and real estate matters. She regularly represents developers in obtaining land use approvals and permits for commercial, industrial, and mixed-use projects, appearing before zoning and planning boards throughout New Jersey. Her work also includes advising on complex development and redevelopment projects and navigating related regulatory requirements. In addition, she has experience handling real property tax appeals, appearing before County Boards of Taxation and the Tax Court of New Jersey on behalf of residential and commercial taxpayers.

Chun brings broad experience handling a wide range of civil and real estate-related disputes, including complex matters involving development, redevelopment, and contractual issues. She has litigated cases through trial and appeal in both federal and state courts in New Jersey and New York, managing all phases of litigation. In addition, she represents clients in land use–related proceedings and other matters before administrative agencies and appellate courts.

Actively involved in both professional and community organizations, Chun is a member of the New Jersey State Bar Association and the Penn Club of Metro New Jersey. She also serves on the Board of Trustees of Lake Arrowhead Community, Inc., where she is Recording Secretary and Easement Chair. Chun earned her J.D. from Seton Hall University School of Law and her B.A. from the University of Pennsylvania. She is admitted to practice in New Jersey and New York.
