OVERVIEW

Ashley Fay handles commercial real estate matters, including the buying, selling, and financing of properties. Ashley also has experience crafting and negotiating purchase agreements, loan documentation, conducting thorough due diligence, and addressing zoning, environmental, and other related issues during closings. Additionally, Ashley provides legal representation to both landlords and tenants involved in commercial property leasing.

Ashley earned her J.D. at Rutgers School of Law. During her time there, Ashley actively participated in the Community and Transactional Law Clinic as well as the Entrepreneurial Clinic. Through these clinics, she assisted individuals with limited financial means in and around Newark by addressing their business requirements. The scope of her involvement varied from aiding startups in business formation to assisting established businesses in drafting contracts tailored to their specific needs.
