OVERVIEW

Dina Goldman assists clients with energy and utilities matters, including regulatory, compliance, and transactional matters.

Prior to joining Day Pitney, Dina served as an attorney advisor in the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission's Office of General Counsel, where she advised the Commission and staff on matters concerning hydropower licensing and natural gas certificate proceedings. During her time there, she served as a subject matter reference for infrastructure plans under statutes such as the Natural Gas Act and Federal Power Act, and served as the lead attorney for preliminary permit matters in the Mid-Atlantic and New England regions of the country.

Previously, Dina served as a law clerk for The Honorable Robert J. Smith at the Fairfax County Circuit Court. Earlier in her career, she also served as a law clerk at the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission's Office of Administrative Litigation, where she assisted staff in preparing cases before administrative law judges at the Commission.
